Megan's practice focuses on the defense of healthcare providers and facilities in medical liability litigation as well as long-term care providers and facilities. She also represents professionals in disciplinary hearings before the Arizona Board of Medicine, Arizona Board of Podiatry, Arizona Board of Physician Assistants, Arizona Osteopathic Board, and Arizona Board of Nursing. Megan has extensive experience representing all types of healthcare practitioners including physicians, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, physical therapists, mental health providers, hospitals and long-term care facilities.

Megan graduated with a degree in Biology from Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts in 1998 cum laude. She earned her law degree from New England School of Law in Boston, Massachusetts in 2002. She then went on to earn her LLM in Biomedicine, Biotechnology and Intellectual Property from Suffolk University Law School, in Boston Massachusetts in 2004.

Megan joined Broening Oberg Woods & Wilson in 2009 as of counsel and was elected to partner in 2012. Prior to joining Broening Oberg Woods & Wilson, Megan's civil litigation practice was primarily focused on representing plaintiffs pursuing long-term care and medical practice recoveries.
